The Ab Lib from Summer 2006 Vol. 5, No. 2

From our Director

Everything I know about the Civil War came from reading Gone With the Wind. As a child growing up in the Midwest, everything I knew about Judaism came from the All-of-a-Kind Family series of books.

Recently, I received a spam email from somebody selling the All-of-a-Kind Family series on CD.

And to the dismay of my family, I spent a great deal of Memorial Day weekend supine on the couch, watching eight hours of the new Gone With the Wind Collector's DVD edition – and there are eight more hours to go!

So, all these years later, these wonderful titles are available in many formats: the book, the large-print book, on tape, on CD, video, DVD, and, as of June, via downloadable audio. The library provides these classic, almost ancient 😊, books in the most modern ways possible. It is important to us to preserve the best of the past.

But right now the Library is thinking about its future: We are in the midst of conducting a five-year Strategic Plan that will identify the community needs and building requirements. We hope to identify and prioritize our roles in the community, address the impact of technology on our operations, identify barriers that prevent some people from using the library and take a good look at the building.

So far, the process has been rewarding and fun! The staff and trustees are busy interviewing community leaders, library users, and local officials. We are learning a lot about our staff and services – most of it extremely positive. One person we interviewed said: "I'm impressed by the fact that the library is conducting this planning process.

It is pro-active, and I hope it is coming from a position of strength." The process is coming from a position of strength, and we look forward to presenting the plan to the public in the fall.

Volunteer Spotlight – Turquoise Walker-McKissick

So, you're planning a wedding and you need to find the sheet music for "Till There Was You." Or you need the printed music of "I Dreamed a Dream" from Les Miserables to prepare for an audition. You may want to find any of thousands of other songs, for any number of reasons. You can find them in our library's collection by keyword searching the song title in the online catalog. But did you ever wonder why - or how - these songs came to be listed in our catalog?

Look no further than Turquoise Walker-McKissick, a dedicated 16-year-old volunteer from Abington High School . Almost every Tuesday during the past two school years, Turquoise has spent hours typing every song title listed in the dozens of songbooks in our collection. What a wonderful service for our library's clientele!

An Abington native, soft-spoken Turquoise attended Roslyn Elementary School . In September, she will be a senior at AHS, where she has been active in Key Club; CPYA, a community service group; and the NAACP. She has a brother and a sister, enjoys dancing and singing, and, for a while, ran track. When asked, Turquoise is decisive about her desire to attend Spelman College , the distinguished and historically black college for women in Atlanta . She aspires to become a lawyer.

During her two years of volunteer service at the library, Turquoise also assisted with the removal of nearly 12,000 discarded items from our database and played a pivotal role in identifying and preparing individual records for some 300 volumes of the Dictionary of Literary Biography that were added to the database. Of late, she has been responsible for pulling music CDs with broken jewel cases (more than 200, to date!) and replacing these cases with sturdier, less breakable containers.

Turquoise's hard work and determination have yielded unseen benefits that are, nevertheless, deeply appreciated by library staff and clientele. Her efforts have enhanced the library's services to the community, and her quiet, gracious presence is a pleasure to all of us who work with her.

– Michael Rechel

Staff Spotlight – M. G. Snyder

Sometimes it takes the biggest heart to do the smallest job. Such is the case with M.G. Snyder. (We know what M.G. stands for, but we'll never tell!) M.G. works at our Roslyn Branch and at Abington. In both libraries a good part of her job consists of paying attention to small details. She listens to and repairs books on tape, videos, books-on-CD and DVDs. At Roslyn, she also works the circulation desk and processes new books.

M.G. was born in the East Oak Lane section of Philadelphia and attended Melrose Academy as a child. Believe it or not, she met her late husband Jack in first grade. Although he went to a different school, she spotted him at church. He was wearing a sailor suit with a big red sailor tie and collar, and he had curly red hair to boot. She didn't see him again until 7 th grade, when the young rascal whistled as he sped by her house on his delivery route. Their first date (in high school) was a trolley ride up Old York Road to the old Yorktown Theater in Elkins Park . Jack was called to serve in WWII, although he was honorably discharged after a training accident and before he could see combat. M.G. went to the University of Pennsylvania and majored in kindergarten and primary education. There were, as she says, "men at Penn," but it was Jack who met her at the altar four years after she graduated.

M.G. taught for four years before she got married. She had three children and stayed home to rear them. When her youngest hit high school, she went back to substitute teaching and then taught remedial reading in the Cheltenham School District for several years.

When she retired from teaching for good, she found she needed to stay involved with her community, which led her to Abington Library in 1983. She has been here and at Roslyn ever since.

M.G. treasures the quiet workspace at the library; but she is anything but quiet herself. She has a wry sense of humor, she loves to eat out and she loves the seashore.

NEW BOOKS recently purchased for the Reference Collection will help high school students doing literary research. We were delighted to add the Twayne Companion to Contemporary Literature in English to our list of resources. This two-volume set contains important criticisms of works such as The Bluest Eye by Toni Morrison and Mama Day by Gloria Naylor. We have also recently acquired The Oxford Book of American Poetry and The Oxford Companion to the Photograph.

AUDIO TO GO – The Library is excited to offer a new service that provides downloadable audio books.

You will need your library card, a computer with Internet access, Windows Media Player (Series 9) and free digital audio book software called OverDrive Media Console. The collection consists of more than 450 titles, ranging in topics and genres. The materials are suitable for children, young adults and adults. What a great way to start the summer – selecting and downloading your audio book from home! Thanks go to the District Center in Norristown for making this available to all Montgomery County residents.

SUMMER COMPUTER CLASSES will be offered during July and August. For classes on the Internet, Word and Excel sign up at the Information Desk or call 215-885-5180 and then press 5.

Please stop by and visit us soon at the Information Desk! – Mimi Satterthwaite, Head of Reference
